

Google Calendar Instructions

A public Google calendar has been created for the program and it has been updated with current event information. To access it, go to your own Google calendar, scroll down on the left-hand side until you see the box entitled "Other calendars," and type oxcam.scholars@gmail.com into the box. Once you add it to your list, it will remain there as a permanently accessible link.

We encourage students to edit the calendar themselves to add social and scientific events that might interest other students. Anyone may view the calendar, but your Gmail address must be on file with the program in order to have editing privileges. Please email your Gmail address to schulmanr@niaid.nih.gov if you would like permission to edit the calendar.

Because of security restrictions related to NIH web servers, we are unable to embed the calendar on the program website events page at this time. We hope to find a way around this obstacle in the near future.